CHARACTERISTICS OF DEGREE PROGRAMME

General and specific learning objectives

The aim of the course is to offer high-level training, which will enable students to develop a set of basic theoretical-scientific skills and practical skills in the field of foreign languages and literatures, in accordance with the strong international vocation of its educational programme. The course includes practical training in the foreign languages of choice, side by side with the reflection on theoretical and applied linguistics. In parallel, literatures and texts are studied across time, in synchronic and diachronic perspective, and space, embracing the European languages and literatures in their global dimension. The study of at least two foreign languages and literatures, freely combined, is accompanied by a number of common core disciplines intended to equip students with a solid humanistic, philological, metalinguistic and literary background. A wide range of optional modules (to be acquired as free ECTS in compliance with the course manual) offers students the possibility to personalise their curriculum thus leading to a versatile and multicultural body of competence.

Expected learning outcomes

Upon completion of their studies, graduates will have achieved the following learning outcomes:

- thorough knowledge of at least two languages, in addition to Italian, with a good metalinguistic awareness and competence;
- extensive and solid preparation in the history of literature of the languages studied;
- adequate knowledge of linguistics, Italian literature, history, and philology (with particular attention to at least one of the languages studied);
- ability to read a text analytically and understand it;
- ability to apply the skills acquired in various work-related and professional situations, especially where strong interpersonal skills are required, in multicultural contexts, and in settings requiring specific language skills.

Professional profile and employment opportunities

Graduates in Foreign languages and literatures develop a wealth of linguistic, literary and cultural skills useful for placing themselves in a variety of professional settings, especially those requiring written and oral command of foreign languages accompanied by a solid humanistic training. In addition, they will have acquired a very good command of techniques of retrieval and management of information from a variety of sources.

The main employment opportunities for graduates in foreign languages and literatures are:

- private companies from various production sectors that maintain contact with international customers;
- public institutions and organizations operating in international contexts and in contact with similar bodies;
- organisation of events (fairs, congresses, exhibitions, cultural events);
- organization and management of tourist activities, and of linguistic and cultural trips and vacations;
- libraries and exhibition centers;
- communication and marketing offices, especially in contexts that require the use of foreign languages;
- human sources and talent scouting services;
- publishing houses, translation agencies and localization of websites and web portals;
- second level of university education (Master's Degree) or with first level vocational masters.

Initial knowledge required

- Requirements and knowledge needed for admission

Admission to the BA Programme in Foreign Languages and Literatures requires a high school diploma or other equivalent foreign qualification and adequate initial preparation. A thorough general education, strong motivations to study modern languages and literatures, and an interest in the international cultural context are essential. Applicants with an Italian qualification are expected to have some basic grounding in general knowledge and language skills that are normally acquired in secondary and high schools. In order to successfully attend the Programme, students must be proficient in Italian and in at least one foreign language (which does not necessarily have to be part of the university curriculum). Appropriate knowledge of Italian literature and basic cultural skills are also required for the languages commonly taught in high schools and which one intends to pursue.

- How to test one's knowledge and preparation

Students interested in the BA Programme must take a compulsory self-assessment and orientation test. The test allows students to assess their initial preparation and fosters self-awareness in their choice. The initial preparation is considered adequate if the test score equals or surpasses the threshold levels set every year. Information regarding the admission test will be detailed in the Call for Applications.

Possession of language level certifications for any of the languages offered by the Programme does not exempt students from taking the test and does not constitute a qualification for admission. The certifications indicated by the Programme board (see the list at https://lingue.cdl.unimi.it/it/iscriversi) may offer facilitations on examination syllabi to those students admitted and actually enrolled only, and in respect of the rules set by each language course.

- Additional Learning Requirements (OFA)

A test score below the threshold level will not prevent enrolment.

Applicants failing to reach the threshold levels must make up for any lacunae by means of specially planned remedial activities (OFA), which should be completed within the first year of the Programme, and without which it will not be possible to sit exams in the second and third years.

Further details will be made available in the notice published at https://www.unimi.it/it/studiare/frequentare-un-corso-di-laurea/iscriversi/iscriversi-una-prima-laurea.

- Applicants who have graduated or are transfering from other study Programmes:

Students who intend to transfer to Foreign Languages and Literatures from another university Programme, whether in Milan or elsewhere, or applicants who have already obtained a BA or MA degree, could be exempt from the admission test only if accepted to the second year or beyond.

The Call for Applications illustrates the procedures and deadlines for applications to evaluate previous careers. Different tests, assessments, eligibility statements, placement tests or certifications of any level will not be accounted for.

Compulsory attendance

Attendance is strongly recommended for all courses and language classes. In some cases (for seminars and workshops), attendance is compulsory to acquire the relevant credits. In general, attendance is required for the courses that specify it in their syllabi (https://lingue.cdl.unimi.it/it/insegnamenti/elenco-insegnamenti-z).

Degree programme final exams

The degree in Foreign Languages and Literatures is awarded after passing a final examination, to which 9 ECTS are attributed. The examination comprises a written paper ranging from 20 to 30,000 words, the drafting of which is supervised by a tutor. In agreement with the tutor, the paper may be written in either of the foreign languages studied or in Italian, even though students are required to consult and make use of reading materials that are international and not solely Italian. The paper may be devoted to a subject matter other than language or literature, provided that the relevant course has been taken during the BA Programme and that the work is consistent with the course of study undertaken. In this case, it is necessary to appoint a respondent specialised in languages or literatures. The final paper will be assessed by a special committee and, if necessary, discussed by the candidate in front of it; part of the discussion takes place in one of the two foreign languages studied. The same rules apply for international students.

To be admitted to the final examination, students must have obtained 171 credits. It is up to the tutor to assess whether the quality of the final paper and its state of progress will allow for its completion within the timeframe envisaged by the academic schedule.

EXPERIENCE OF STUDY ABROAD AS PART OF THE TRAINING PROGRAM

The University of Milan supports international mobility by providing its students with the opportunity to spend study and internship periods abroad. It is a unique chance to enrich your educational path in a new exciting environment.

The agreements entered into by the University with over 300 universities from the 27 EU member countries under the European Erasmus+ programme allow regularly enrolled students to carry out part of their studies at one of the partner universities or to undertake internships at companies, training and research centres and other organizations.

Similar international mobility opportunities are provided outside Europe, through agreements with a number of prestigious institutions.

Study and internships abroad

The undergraduate programme in Foreign languages and literatures has always been characterized by its strong international vocation, in line with the disciplines taught there and with the research activities of its academic staff. The programme can boast a significant number of mobility agreements for students which is constantly increasing.

As part of the Erasmus + programme, more than 150 scholarships are made available each year for study periods of a semester to an entire academic year, in agreement with 88 partner universities located in over 20 countries. Overall, this is the broadest range of opportunities for international mobility offered in the entire humanities area. The network of solid relationships built over the years allows students of foreign languages and literatures to complete part of their academic career in prestigious universities located in the European capitals, in ancient institutions or less central locations, thus offering a very diverse range of experiences.

The opportunities for non-European mobility grants are also very rich and progressively expanding. Currently the following destinations are available: Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru, and Russian Federation. Interested students are guaranteed detailed information and guidance in preparation of departure.

During a term abroad, students attend courses that are compatible with those they would have attended in their home University in Milan, following a training project designed with a tutor in the months preceding their departure, and culminating in the draft of a study contract (the Learning Agreement). Coordination with the tutors (one or more for each language area) ensures expert support and guidance throughout the process, as well as full validation of the credits acquired abroad.

The experience of university and daily life in the country of one of the elected languages and literatures represents a unique opportunity for students to improve their linguistic competence. A study abroad stay is also a period of personal and relational growth, as well as of cultural advancement, which favors mutual comprehension and the integration in the complex contemporary society.

The course programme provides substantial support to interested students through specialised manuals on partner Universities and their locations and through an orientation and tutoring service, which can be accessed in person or via email. The service is aimed at assisting in fulfilling the applications, in the drafting of the Learning Agreement and in the preparation of administrative documents. For all details, please refer to the page http://www.lingue.unimi.it/ecm/home/didattica/erasmus-mobilita-internazionale.

How to participate in Erasmus mobility programs

The students of the University of Milan can participate in mobility programmes, through a public selection procedure. Ad hoc commissions will evaluate:

- Academic career
- the candidate's proposed study programme abroad
- his/her foreign language proficiency
- the reasons behind his/her application

Call for applications and informative meetings

The public selection for Erasmus+ mobility for study generally begins around February each year with the publication of a call for applications specifying destinations and requirements. Regarding the Erasmus+ Mobility for Traineeship, the University of Milan usually publishes two calls a year enabling students to choose a destination defined by an interinstitutional agreement or to find a traineeship position on their own.

The University organizes informative meetings to illustrate mobility opportunities and rules for participation.

Erasmus+ scholarship

The European Union grants the winners of the Erasmus+ programme selection a scholarship to contribute to their mobility costs, which may be supplemented by the University funding for disadvantaged students.

Language courses

Students who pass the selections for mobility programmes can benefit from intensive foreign language courses offered each year by the University Language Centre (SLAM).

6 ECTS of "Laboratorio"

"Laboratori" are short or intensive workshops, either held in class (usually for a total of ten meetings), or in remote learning, with a restricted number of participants, different aims in comparison with standard courses, and a specific set of rules for enrolment. Attending each workshop allows to earn 3 credits; as Foreign Languages and Literatures B.A. programme requires 6 credits of this kind, every student should attend two workshops. Foreign Languages and Literatures students may attend all the workshops offered by the B.A. programme and by the other B.A. degrees in the Faculty of Humanities and the 4EU+ activities, provided they have the prerequisites indicated by each one. As a general rule, each workshop requires regular attendance at meetings, since the 3 credits are earned through attendance alone and, in some cases, by taking a final examination, or by delivering reports, presentations or other types of tasks. The workshops are not graded as normal courses; they are simply passed with an "Approved" or failed.

All year long numerous cultural initiatives, conferences, activities in collaboration with external institutions (such as secondary schools, theatres, cultural organisations, etc.), work experience and projects of cultural or social relevance are proposed. Participation in such initiatives may result in the recognition of 3 credits as "Attività Sostitutive di Laboratorio" (ASL). The website of the B.A. in Foreign Languages and Literatures provides details about the "Laboratori" (https://lingue.cdl.unimi.it/it/insegnamenti/laboratori) and alternative activities (https://lingue.cdl.unimi.it/it/insegnamenti/attivita-sostitutive-di-laboratorio) offered.

"Laboratorio" credits can be acquired also through proficiency in other languages, training and orientation courses, other knowledge considered useful for the job market, internships or apprenticeships in private or public companies or institutions. Requests for validation of these skills or experiences should be submitted to the appropriate Committee through the form provided on the website Dipartimento di Lingue e letterature straniere (http://www.lingue.unimi.it/ecm/home/didattica/info-lingue/altre-attivita-formative-3-cfu).

Any kind of "Laboratorio" or equivalent activity can be registered in the study plan just once.

Students without an Italian degree or diploma will obtain 3 credits in Additional language skills: Italian by proving an Italian language proficiency at level B1 within the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). This level can be assessed by the end of the degree course in the following ways:

- by submitting the language certificate achieved no more than three years prior to the submission, at level B1 or higher, recognised by the University (the list of recognised language certificates can be found at: https://www.unimi.it/en/node/349/). The language certificate must be uploaded through the service https://informastudenti.unimi.it/saw/ess?AUTH=SAML, by choosing the category SLAM;

- by an entry-level test, organised by SLAM, which can be taken at the beginning of every semester.

12 FREE CHOICE CREDITS

These credits may be allocated to two 6 credits courses freely chosen among all those offered by the B.A. in Foreign Languages and Literatures or by other B.A. in the Faculty of Humanities. Students are encouraged to choose courses that are coherent with the B.A. programme in Foreign Languages and Literatures or other fields in the Humanities. Courses such as Comparative Literature and General Linguistics are suggested.

Alternatively, 3 of these free credits may be allocated to one of the 6 credits area exams; or 6 of these free credits may be allocated to both area exams. The remaining 9 or 6 free credits must necessarily be used for another exam.

It is also possible to allocate 9 of the free credits to a third foreign language or literature exam (first year only). This option may be useful for students of English Literature who wish to take an exam in American Literature (or vice versa), for students of Spanish Literature who wish to take an exam in Spanish-American Literature (or vice versa), and for students of Russian Language and Literature who wish to take an exam in in Polish Language or Literature (or vice versa). Students who have not passed the English language entry test prior to enrolment will not be allowed to take the English Language or the English Literature exam.

No exam selected in the study plan may be repeated, not even using free credits.

COURSE PROGRESSION REQUIREMENTS

Some courses are considered preparatory to others, and they must necessarily be taken before others and in a specific order, under penalty of cancellation of the exams taken irregularly by the University Administration.

- Linguistics must be taken before Germanic, Romance or Slavic Philology, and before General Linguistics
- Foreign language exams: all the exams of the first year are preparatory to those of the second, and these in turn to those of the third
- Exams of foreign literature: as above

Moreover, before taking a second year Language or Literature exam, it is necessary to have taken and registered the first year exams of that same Language and Literature; the same rule applies to the second / third year exams.
