CHARACTERISTICS OF DEGREE PROGRAMME

General and specific learning objectives

The post-graduate degree course in Languages and Cultures for International Communication and Co-operation aims to provide specialized training for language mediators and to hone their language skills and cultural expertise through the wide range of language and culture courses offered. Students will also develop carefully selected skills in the fields of law, economics, sociology, psychology and anthropology, all essential to develop highly qualified professionals in the sphere of Intercultural communication and international cooperation.

Expected learning outcomes

Graduates of this course are expected to develop advanced language and comprehension skills in at least two contemporary European or non-European languages and cultures, together with specific professional expertise related to specialized translation and liaison interpreting, backed up by a thorough grounding in theory. The course equips students with the advanced and in-depth knowledge needed for informed analysis of the contemporary world and for understanding the differences between various modern social systems and migratory trends. Students will examine in some depth the micro-economic factors underlying consumer and company behaviour, as well as the macro-economic forces involved in issues related to development and globalization. The relationship between literature/culture and the media system will be addressed in detail. Students will also be introduced to the legal principles governing international trade, the defence of human rights and the working of international organizations, and will acquire advanced understanding of the psychology of intercultural relations and of cultural and linguistic geography. This skill set will be developed through specialized courses held in the language studied, dedicated workshops, and language lessons with an emphasis on the specialized languages relevant to the students' programme. Students will be equipped with a high level of professionalism that will enable them to interact directly with national and international bodies and organizations to facilitate processes of cultural, linguistic, economic, and social integration, and to act effectively in social or institutional situations in a multilingual and multicultural context.

Professional profile and employment opportunities

In an international perspective, thanks to the advanced skills and knowledge acquired, will graduates will be well-placed to find positions, and fill high responsibility posts, within international institutions and bodies, in both the public and corporate spheres. Opportunities also exist in the directorates of international bodies and in international cooperation and development organisations. Their advanced and highly specific skill set means they are ideally placed to work with bodies and organizations directly involved in the processes of cultural, linguistic, economic and social integration, where it is crucial to understand the need to protect immigrants' languages and other core issues of integration, especially in the light of European Union language policies. Graduates will also find places in teaching. This degree course trains graduates to understand the issues related to the dynamics of intercultural and interethnic relations in such sectors as public and private companies, public institutions, cultural organisations, environmental agencies, tourist boards, publishing and journalism. To sum up, graduates will acquire the ability to apply their expertise in communication and information in contexts in which it essential to have a thorough grounding in the multicultural issues involved in the processes affecting contemporary societies, particularly at an international level.

EXPERIENCE OF STUDY ABROAD AS PART OF THE TRAINING PROGRAM

The University of Milan supports the international mobility of its students, offering them the opportunity to spend periods of study and training abroad, a unique opportunity to enrich their curriculum in an international context.

Study and internships abroad

Within the framework of the Erasmus programme, 56 exchange agreements are in place, covering 17 European countries: Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Estonia, France, Germany, Ireland, Latvia, Malta, Norway, the Netherlands, Portugal, Poland, United Kingdom, Spain, Sweden, Hungary, plus Switzerland, which participates in the Erasmus + programme as a partner country. Additionally, Erasmus traineeship agreements have also been signed with companies and institutions in some of the above-mentioned countries.

Additionally, a number of exchange agreements are in place with partner universities in non-European countries. Under these agreements, students have the opportunity to attend classes and take exams at partner institutions. Such activities and exam results may be validated in full or in part, with the corresponding credits concurring to fulfil the requirements for the attainment of the degree. Courses are typically offered in the areas of languages and the humanities, and are available in the following partner institutions:

- ARGENTINA: Villa María (Córdoba)
- BRASILE: Università Federale di Uberlandia
- CILE: Playa Ancha (Valparaíso)
- CINA: Liaoning Normal University
- COLOMBIA: Pontificia Universidad Javeriana (Bogotá)
- CUBA: Universidad de la Habana
- GIAPPONE: Doshisha University (Kyoto), Meiji University (Tokyo), Waseda University (Tokyo), Kyoto University
- MESSICO: Universidad de Guadalajara, Claustro de Sor Juana (Città del Messico)
- INDIA: Manipal (Karnataka)
- RUSSIA: Pushkin Institute (Mosca), Russian State University for the Humanities (Mosca), Linguistics University of Nizhny Novgorod, Moscow City Pedagogical University (Mosca), Novosibirsk Pedagogical State University, High School of Economics (Mosca)
- STATI UNITI: University of Louisville

Besides the opportunities for studying in other European countries offered by the Erasmus+ exchange agreements, the course also has an articulation agreement in place with Manchester Metropolitan University (UK) leading to a double degree. Students accepted in the programme obtain an Italian degree in Languages and Cultures for International Communication and Cooperation and a UK Master of Arts in English Studies. UNIMI students admitted to the double degree programme spend two terms at the partner university (and viceversa). For further information, please contact Prof. Nicoletta Vallorani (nicoletta.vallorani@unimi.it).

How to participate in Erasmus mobility programs

To gain access to mobility programs for study purposes, lasting 3-12 months, the enrolled students of the University of Milan must attend a public selection that starts usually around the month of February each year through the presentation of specific competition announcements, which contain information on available destinations, respective duration of the mobility, requirements and deadlines for submitting the online application.

The selection, aimed at evaluating the proposed study abroad program of the candidate, knowledge of a foreign language, especially when this is a preferential requirement, and the motivations behind the request, is performed by specially constituted commissions.

Each year, before the expiry of the competition announcements, the University organises information sessions for the specific study course or groups of study courses, in order to illustrate to students the opportunities and participation rules.

To finance stays abroad under the Erasmus + program, the European Union assigns to the selected students a scholarship that - while not covering the full cost of living abroad - is a useful contribution for additional costs as travel costs or greater cost of living in the country of destination.

The monthly amount of the communitarian scholarship is established annually at national level; additional contributions may be provided to students with disabilities.

In order to enable students in economic disadvantaged conditions to participate in Erasmus+ program, the University of Milan assigns further additional contributions; amount of this contributions and criteria for assigning them are established from year to year.

The University of Milan promotes the linguistic preparation of students selected for mobility programs, organising every year intensive courses in the following languages: English, French, German and Spanish.

The University in order to facilitate the organisation of the stay abroad and to guide students in choosing their destination offers a specific support service.
